

I think that true democracy is at risk with further concentration of media. I am against it, and I also ask.... what's the rush to vote June 2nd, 2003, other than News Corp and Clearchannel want to make zillions of dollars more, without regard to any provisions of providing balanced news and information to the public .

At the very least, this decision should be put off at least six months so that the public can discuss the implications of increased ownership and the effect of merging companies.

Also, where is the media reportage on this issue, other than on Pacifica Radio and spare spare reporting on NPR?

This is why this issues should be put in front of the public - the corporations don't want it that way, and I say that is just too bad.

Democracy requires diversity of opinion, of views, of news. Further concentration of media won't provide that.

Thank you.
